Introduction

The contribution and influence of the great institution of school on the development of man and society cannot be measured or compared with anything, not only with the work of teachers and mentors who decide the future of our youth, but also of our entire people. (First President of the Republic of Uzbekistan I.A. Karimov)

Main

We know that one of the subjects of the complex process called education is a teacher. First of all, a teacher must understand that he is a reliable and necessary representative of the state and society. Therefore, the state has entrusted teachers with its great wealth, trust, hope, and most importantly, children, who are its future. Not everyone can do such a hugely responsible job.

This profession requires constant research, creativity, a huge heart, love for the future generation, that is, children, and unlimited loyalty from every person who devotes his life to it.

Pedagogical skill is revealed during the teacher's activity. Skill is the highest level of pedagogical activity that can be achieved within a certain time and brings results. Pedagogical skill is manifested in the effective solution of various pedagogical tasks, in the organization of educational processes at a high level with a creative approach and interesting organization.

The teacher forms the structure, procedure and mechanisms of its organization of the laws and regulations of the educational process. Raising, teaching, educating and shaping children is one of the main tasks of a teacher.

Raising a person is a basic concept in pedagogy. It means the joint activity of the family and society aimed at forming a harmonious generation. With the help of upbringing, the spiritual aspects of the human personality are envisaged to be developed. Upbringing plays a great role in the manifestation of faith, goodness, worldview, goodness, beauty skills in a person. A student who comes to the teacher's hands is like a blank sheet of paper. It depends on the teacher himself what to fill it with. We know that a child who has just entered school has not yet adapted to this environment and quickly gets bored with lessons. At such a time, the teacher needs to conduct interesting lessons for children and use various methods during the lesson.

According to researchers, 4 components form the basis of pedagogical skills:

1. Compliance with the requirements of pedagogical humanism;
2. Loyalty to the teaching profession;
3. Perfect knowledge of the methodology of teaching his subject;
4. Ability to demonstrate pedagogical skills.

Thus, the teaching profession is a complex and responsible profession.

The teaching profession is a profession that has always been respected by society and the public. Al-Farabi says the following about the teacher in his work: "A teacher must have intelligence, beautiful speech, and be able to fully and clearly express the idea he wants to convey to students." He continues his thoughts about the teacher and says, "The role of a teacher is similar to the role of a wise leader. Therefore, he must think through every task. At the same time, the teacher must fairly value his honor and dignity. Only then will he achieve a high level of humanity and reach the pinnacle of knowledge."

Abu Ali Ibn Sina believes: "A teacher should be a pure, steadfast, knowledgeable, conscientious, truthful, and a moral person who knows the methods of raising children."

Nasreddin Tusi in his work "On the Education of Teachers" says: a teacher should be able to conduct discussions with irrefutable evidence, be confident in the correctness of his thoughts, have absolutely clean speech, and logically express his sentences, and never, anywhere, be harsh or poisonous, and the teacher's inability to control his temper during a discussion can ruin the work.

Conclusion

Based on the above points, it can be said that every person should keep up with science and knowledge, acquire knowledge and achieve intellectual maturity, and this task is naturally performed by a teacher. The more skilled the teachers are, the higher the young generation receiving education, knowledge and upbringing will achieve. There will never be a shortage of children who have received education from a skilled, knowledgeable teacher. Therefore, every person in the world needs to receive pedagogical education and upbringing.
