As a result, in this regard in turn, the importance of the scientific research to be conducted attracted public attention. Scholars are held in relation to the family emphasizing the uniqueness of the research and the methods used in it, the family also an opinion about the norms of etiquette that must be observed in research those who walked.

In particular, parental institutions and their child-rearing methods problem is mentioned in the works of a number of Russian researchers (A.E. Lichko, 1979; A.A. Bodalev, A.A. Stolin, 1989; E.G. Eidemiller, V. V. Yustitsky, 1999).

First of all, the most important qualities of parenting - the energy, time and effort spent on protection or raising their children the criterion of attention, the level of meeting the various needs of the child, discipline level of demands, prohibitions or child's behavior related to calling include a system of sanctions used for deterrence.

Relationships with different styles of family upbringing mean that parents have deep attention or indifference to the child's personality. He continued these thoughts of Alloma Abu Rayhan Beruni suggests the following:

"Human thing and not only knowledge about the external quality and characteristics of phenomena he compares things and events, comparing them with each other, due to his thinking sees, determines the truth of his knowledge" ². The thinker also assimilation of knowledge by people leads to the creation of new knowledge He says that he will bring: "There are many sciences. Their time is fortunate, and different opinions and the memories add to them.

Abdulla Awlani, while talking about human intellectual perfection, states the following:

"Knowledge is the honor of the world and the glory of the hereafter. Knowledge is human is a very sacred virtue for make our actions look like a mirror, make our minds and thoughts sharp like a sword, a man without knowledge is like a tree without fruit.

All knowledge makes a person ignorant also emphasizes that it is the most effective means of salvation: "Knowledge is our ignorance rescues from darkness, leads to the world of culture and enlightenment, from bad deeds, prevents bad deeds, makes one possess good manners and manners. Our life today our health, happiness, wealth, life, diligence, enthusiasm, the world and the hereafter depend on science"³. Parents "pay attention to everything", "don't notice anything", his

They are not interested in their development and inner world. From contact with him actively avoid it, keep it away. Children are left to themselves. In some families, parents either do not "see" their child, or are active with him avoid communication and keep it at a distance (psychological distance) they prefer.

Parents' indifference to the child's development and inner life makes him lonely and unhappy. Later, he alienated people or develops aggression. A child from such a family is insecure at school, neurosis, having difficulties in relationships with peers.

No one in the family with the child's development or spiritual world is not interested, he prefers to stay at a distance and not communicate at all. In his youth, he suffered terribly because of this attitude. One or both parents are alcoholics or drug addicts alienated parents in dysfunctional substance-abusing families more common. Such indifferent attitude of parents makes the child lonely and makes deeply unhappy, insecure. He loses the desire to communicate with people relative aggression can be formed.

In the future, such a small person will deprive his children of their childhood wonderful loving parents who try to give everything they have out of control, who dreams of revenge on the whole world for their grievances, can grow as an aggressive type.

Therefore, paying special attention to the intellectual growth and intellectual development of the parents along with the manners of the children in the family helps the children to grow up with a broad worldview.

It is worth noting that in some cases the activities of parents and children intervention is so direct that it is parents with young people causes conflicts between them, and conflicts between them are like that it comes from a lot of interference.

That is, the parent's child is an adult their interventions and care when they reach their age and start an independent life can have both positive and negative consequences. Children have independent economic status, independent thinking having it requires the father and mother to fulfill other additional roles.

Mental development of children with mental characteristics of parents together with the parent-child relationship in the family, the parent-child relationship It is reasonable to say that it depends on the management style possible In our research, democratic management in the family prevailed it was observed that the children of the families have a relatively independent opinion.

The results of Dj.Raven's test in children with an authoritarian style of management in the family had a relatively superior indicator. However, it was carried out by us training activities aimed at developing mental abilities are democratic and liberal or working with children of a family where authoritarian rule prevails is the same proved to be effective.

The analysis of the results shows that parents only care about their children's luck they connect with their school grades. This is the child's personality and his leads to neglect of abilities. This is in our future research correctional work with parents to eliminate the situation we planned.

1. Increasing attention to the mental development of children in the family;
2. Development of mental abilities of children of different ages for parents development of instructions on ways;
3. Organization of schools of parents and practicing psychologists in them to carry out developmental psychological training.
